under the chairmanship of Senator Shelby. The critical U.S. industry sectors were in dire need of terrorism insurance to Congress listened and we acted in 2002, creating the Terrorism Risk Insurance Act (TRIA). Since then, our Nation is more secure and our private insurance market is more developed. The Homeland Security Act of 2002 established the Department of Homeland Security (DHS) to ensure that our Nation was prepared to prevent, respond to, and recover from large-scale terrorist attacks. The United States seeks to ensure that energy development throughout the United States is conducted in a way that is safe, secure, and respects the environment. The Department of Energy (DOE) works with its partners to ensure that our Nation's energy supply is reliable, affordable, and secure. The Federal Emergency Management Agency (FEMA) is an agency within the Department of Homeland Security that has the mission of ensuring a coordinated national response to disasters. FEMA's mission is to lead and support the nation in preparing for, protecting against, responding to, and recovering from natural disasters and other man-made disasters.
