Marshfield, Wisconsin - Wikipedia

Marshfield is a city in Wood County and Marathon County in the U.S. state of Wisconsin. It is located at the intersection of U.S. Highway 10, Highway 13 and the Wisconsin State Highway 100.

As of the 2010 census, the population was 25,197. At the 2010 census, the city density was 225 people per square mile (87/km²). The racial makeup of the city was 96.2% White, 0.5% African American, 0.8% Native American, 0.7% Asian, 0.1% from other races, and 0.6% from two or more races.

Marshfield and the surrounding area have a strong presence in the dairy and farming industries, with nearby counties and the city of Marshfield itself being home to a number of dairy farms and cattle operations. Dairy and farming are major employers in the region, and the economy is largely driven by these industries.

In addition to its dairy and farming industries, Marshfield is also known for its manufacturing and technology sectors. The city is home to a number of manufacturing companies, including Caterpillar Inc., which has a large operation in Marshfield, and other companies such as Wisconsin Mining Company and Wisconsin Paper Company.

The cultural scene in Marshfield is also vibrant, with a number of art galleries, performances, and festivals throughout the year. The Marshfield Art Museum, located in downtown Marshfield, has an excellent collection of American and European art, including works by 19th-century landscape artist Albert Bierstadt. The museum also hosts temporary exhibitions, educational programs, and other events throughout the year.

Marshfield is also home to a number of parks and recreational areas, including the Marshfield Park, which offers a variety of amenities for visitors, including a playground, picnic areas, and scenic walking trails. The city also has a number of community events throughout the year, including the Marshfield Fair, which is a popular annual event that features a variety of attractions, including rides, games, and a grand parade.

Overall, Marshfield is a vibrant community with a rich history and a diverse economy, offering a range of cultural, recreational, and employment opportunities for visitors and residents alike.
